[redacted] Administrative Staff, OSO, inquired with respect to the commencement date and termination date for the purposes of computing (2 years continuous service abroad) as it appears in P.L. 724, 79th Congress and P.L. 110, 81st Congress. 25X1A

[redacted] advised me that the commencement date for purposes of computing home leave is the date of arrival at the individual's assigned post and that the termination date is the date of departure from the assigned post. Travel time consumed in proceeding to or from the station is not entered into the computation unless there is TDY performed enroute.

Originally, the preceding Foreign Service Acts read that home leave would be computed after two years of continuous service. A person could be considered to be in the Foreign Service upon his commencement of travel to his foreign post, even though performed in the continental United States. RESTRICTED 25X1A
